Methods of Instruction

- Laboratory
- Lecture/Discussion
- Distance Learning

Lab:

1. In a computer lab, the Instructor will show the course LMS shell on the projection screen. The instructor will demonstrate the steps to find a Discussion Board assignment in the course module and then model how to type in a response using complete sentences and submit. Students will follow the same steps to find that week's discussion board assignment and submit their own responses. Once each student has submitted a response, the instructor will show the discussion board on the projection screen and demonstration how to scroll to read all the responses, select one, type a response, and submit. Next, students will follow those steps, and respond to two students.

Lecture:

1. Instructor will guide students through previewing and schema building of Sierra College Tutor Center. New vocabulary will be explained. Students will work in pairs to fill in a graphic organizer with information such as location, hours of operation, and cost to student. Instructor will lead discussion the advantages and challenges of these details. Each student will write one question about tutoring or the tutor center. Students will practice in pairs asking their question. The class will visit the tutor center for a pre-arranged tour. Each student will ask their question to a staff member and write the answer.
2. Instructor will review the form and use of the simple present tense with emphasis on third person. Instructor will model using sentences about usual weekday activities with a PASS PEER. Students will work in pairs discussing usual weekday activities. Instructor will roam and give feedback to students. As a whole class activity, instructor will ask students to share with the class the usual activities of their partner utilizing third person.

Distance Learning

1. The instructor will post a video explaining parts of speech (e.g., nouns and pronouns). Teacher will provide sentences from their reader and students will circle all the nouns and underline the pronouns. Students will submit through the LMS.
